Train For Palestine Flying

These men have already made solo flights at the Hechalutz School.

Jewish Aviators At Hechalutz Training School
Prepare For Defense, Palestine Pioneer Roles

Special
CREAM RIDGE, N. J.—Soaring aloft on newfound wings, the first group of pilots being trained at the Hechalutz Training School here are completing the first three months of their program by tucking their "cub diplomas" under their dungarees and going up for solo flights.

These Jewish youth are the initial class in aviation sponsored by the Hechalutz Organization of America, which has already turned out over three hundred young Jewish farmers now pioneering in Palestine. The new type of training offered by the Hechalutz is in keeping with the war defense measures of the United States and also will provide skilled personnel for Palestine in the post-war reconstruction period.

The success of the first group has already led to plans for a larger school, with training provided for any young Jew who meets the civil air authority physical requirements and is ready to serve in the pioneer Palestine movement for a period of two years after the conclusion of the war. All are prepared to answer the call of the United States government for service in the regular defense positions.

The sponsoring committee of the aviation school includes Dr. Solomon Goldman, Louis Lipsky, Abba Hillel Silver, Hayim Greenberg and Edmund I. Kaufmann.

Skit To Feature
Council Meeting

A skit entitled "All In A Day" will be presented by members of the Indianapolis Section of the National Council of Jewish Women at the regular meeting at 2:00 p. m. next Monday at Kirschbaum Center. Also on the program are a group of piano solos by Miss Anne Kahn, and a report of the Big Sister committee by Mrs. Philip Fichman. Mrs. Sultan Cohen, president, has announced that following the meeting tea will be served in the lounge.

Special
FORT WAYNE—Felix Zweig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Zweig, was elected to Sigma Xi, national scientific honorary society. Mr. Zweig is a graduate student at Yale in electrical engineering.

Weizmann Coming Here

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization and the Jewish Agency, is scheduled to leave for the United States on March 6. He will fly to Lisbon from where he is expected to take the Clipper to New York on March 8. Dr. Weizmann will bring to New York important news resulting from his prolonged negotiations with the British Government.

America First Meet
Rebukes Anti-Semites

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK—A firm rebuke was given to adherents of Joseph E. McWilliams' anti-Semitic American Destiny Party when they attempted to convert an isolationist rally at Mecca Temple into an anti-Jewish demonstration.

A number of McWilliams followers, estimated by some at 500 persons, acting on advance instructions, began shouting anti-Semitic slogans during speeches. As soon as organizers of the meeting became aware of the anti-Semites' presence, speaker after speaker repudiated them.

John T. Flynn declared: "We do not approve doctrines which stimulate racial hatreds or religious hatreds or any kind of hatreds in this country." Senator Burton K. Wheeler said: "I abhor intolerance whether it be predicated upon color, race or religion." Norman Thomas also denounced racial prejudice. The rally was sponsored by the American First Committee and the Keep America Out of War Congress.

Hardman To Play
For Shu Shan Shag

Bill Hardman and his 11-piece orchestra will play for the Shu Shan Shag of the Beth El Youth Group from 10:00 p. m. — ? Saturday, March 8 at the temple. Also on the program is a short burlesque on the story of Haman and Esther, under the direction of Sylvia Madiel. The chairmen have announced that it is not a date affair and the public is invited.

The Case For the Budget Committee
By Sidney Hollander, President, Council of Jewish Welfare
Funds and Federations

Some agencies feel that they may obtain more favorable consideration from certain local budgeting committees as a result of the pressures that may be brought than through an examination and publication of their needs by a group of fair-minded representatives of welfare fund cities. It would be unfortunate if they succeeded in creating the impression that they had any reason to fear the opening of their records and the detailed presentation of their programs to representatives of the contributing public. They deny the possibility of obtaining such fair-minded persons in this country, despite the record of the 1940 U. J. A. Allotment Committee and despite the fact that they rely on such individuals to make actual decisions on their requests before each local budget committee. On the contrary, they maintain that not enough such persons can be found in the whole country to compose a committee which would not even make decisions but only offer information and guidance.

Certainly, they have a right to hold, and express, whatever opinion they desire. It is to be hoped, however, that they will keep in mind the fact that Jewish communities should make their decisions solely on the usefulness of the proposed services to their individual needs, and not as a result of hysterical clamor or threats of disruption. Such an atmosphere does not contribute to wise judgments.

It is not likely that the member agencies of the council will misinterpret the proposed services as an effort to "standardize Jewish life" or as a desire on the part of the council to "exercise a controlling authority over the principles and ideals—the aims and aspirations—of the agencies serving Jewish needs." Statements of that sort cannot influence those who have known the council and the principles for which it stands, have valued its past services and cooperated in its efforts to promote Jewish community organization on the widest possible basis. The council has continuously refused to accept, or to exercise, any measure of control over its members, even when these were urged upon it. On the contrary, it has insisted that its only purpose, and its sole field of usefulness, lies in providing its members with such services as they themselves request. Nothing more!

If the contemplated budget-advisory service is set up, it will be exactly what its name indicates. Budget advisory! Each community will be free in the future, as it has been in the past, to make its own decisions on all matters. Each must determine what agencies it wishes to support, and the measure of that support. If they feel that the new service may be helpful in bringing about a better understanding of, and a more sympathetic response to, all legitimate Jewish causes, as the board of the council believes, they will vote for its establishment. And of one thing they can be sure. No agency appealing to welfare funds has anything to fear from an honest, sympathetic examination of its programs and needs.

We believe the good sense of the American Jewish communities will understand the real issue involved and will not be confused by obvious misinterpretations. The only issue is whether more effective budgeting can be done by communities through adequate information and fair-minded appraisal of services than through limited facts and uninformative figures, especially when these are associated with pressures, whose purpose is to persuade rather than to enlighten.

The real question is whether or not the organized Jewish communities, in cooperation with each other, will continue to strive for harmony, tolerance and a rational approach to their difficult problems.

Parliament Hears
Demand For Army
Of Million Jews

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON — Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson, Conservative Member of Parliament, has urged creation of a Jewish army, asserting it could bring a force of 1,000,000 to the side of the British. Stressing that Palestine was the key position in the present situation in the Balkans, Commander Locker-Lampson said, in a letter to the Manchester Guardian, that "a dozen Hebrew divisions in the highland of Mt. Carmel might turn the tide."

Voicing fear that the Jews, who "of all people have a right to defend themselves," might be forgotten after the war, he declared it was not too late to right the wrong done to the Jews by not allowing them to form their own army, like those of the Czechs, Poles and Free French. "They might have reached the strength of a million and be fighting on our side in and around Palestine—brothers on the battlefields," he said.

Wire Shock Fatal
To Ft. Wayne Youth

Special
FORT WAYNE—Death by electric shock came to Abraham Ochstein, 22, while he was tinkering with a transformer in the Ochstein second hand store here last Friday. Taken to the Methodist Hospital, he was pronounced dead on arrival there. Dr. A. P. Hattendorf, Allen county coroner, said death was due to electric shock.

A sister, Dora, 11, was in the shop using the telephone when she heard a crackling noise. Her brother cried out and took two or three steps before he collapsed.

Young Ochstein was a graduate of Central High School and was a member of the B'nai Jacob Synagogue. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Himan Ochstein; two brothers, Harry of Lafayette and William of Auburn, and four sisters, Mrs. Hyman Perelmut and Mrs. Albert Goldberg, both of Evansville, and Dora and Rose at home.

U. H. C. Banquet
Plans Completed

Preparation for the thirty-eighth anniversary celebration of the United Hebrew Congregation and Sisterhood beginning at 5 p. m. Sunday, March 2, were completed this week, Harry Gross, general chairman, has announced. The affair, a banquet, will be held at Beth El Temple, 34th and Ruckle.

In addition to talks by Rabbis M. M. Feuerlicht, Elias Charry and Maurice Goldblatt, a complete program has been arranged. Sidney Stein, son of Louis Stein, one of the oldest members of the congregation, will be toastmaster. Joe Mitchell, the congregation's president, was chairman of the ad committee for the affair.

Rev. Howard J. Baumgartel, secretary of Federation of Churches of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Baumgartel will be guests at the affair.

SCHARFFIN & KROGER Attorneys for Plaintiff

COMPLAINT FOR DIVORCE
State of Indiana, Marion County, ss: In the Superior Court of Marion County in the State of Indiana.
No. B-14017.
Hazel Brown Glover vs. Harry R. Glover.
Be it known, that on the 18th day of February, 1941, the above named plaintiff, by her attorneys, filed in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court of Marion County, in the State of Indiana, her complaint against the above named defendant, Harry R. Glover, and the said plaintiff having also filed in said clerk's office the affidavit of a competent person showing that the residence of the defendant is Barlum Hotel, Cadillac Square and Bates Street, Detroit, Mich., and the defendant is not a resident of the State of Indiana, and that said cause of action is for divorce, and that the defendant is a necessary party thereto, and whereas said plaintiff having by endorsement on said complaint required said defendant to appear in said court and answer or demur thereto on the 17th day of April, 1941.
Now, therefore, by order of said court, said defendant last above named is hereby notified of the filing and pendency of said complaint against him and that unless he appear and answer or demur thereto at the calling of said cause on the 17th day of April, 1941, the same being the tenth judicial day of a term of said court to be begun and held at the Courthouse in the City of Indianapolis on the first Monday in April, 1941, said complaint and the matters and things therein contained and alleged will be heard and determined in his absence.

Report Meeting Set Tuesday For Hadassah Luncheon Workers

With the fifth annual Hadassah Doornr Luncheon just two weeks off, a report meeting and dessert tea for the committee members will be held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Borinstein, 5009 Washington Blvd., at 1:30 p. m. this Tuesday to complete plans for the affair March 19 at the Claypool Hotel.

Mrs. Max Selig, doner luncheon co-chairman stated that the Hadassah Medical Organization will be principal recipient of the luncheon proceeds this year because of the heavy demands in the present emergency. In addition to the hospital facilities and supplies with which the Hadassah Medical Organization is aiding Great Britain, Mrs. Selig said "there is urgent need for funds to combat the danger of malaria, tuberculosis and trachoma to which the new refugees in Palestine are particularly susceptible on account of the hardships they suffered before they finally reached Palestine. Many new settlements which have been started to make room for them, are as yet mere outposts, which must be made healthful places to live," she continued.

Youth Aliyah activities will receive the remainder of the doner luncheon proceeds.

Mrs. S. Weinberg out-of-town reservation chairman, reports that many reservations are being received from Hadassah Chapters and Hadassah friends throughout the state.

The program for the affair will be announced soon.

Mrs. Jacob Weiss, co-chairman, of the luncheon and also in charge of the speaker's bureau, is being assisted by Mrs. Borinstein, Mrs. Victor Goldberg, Mrs. Phillip Fichman, Mrs. Paller, Mrs. S. A. Silberman, Mrs. Lewis Levy and Miss Emma Gelman.

U. S. Zionists To Form New Non-Jewish Group

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
WASHINGTON — The Emergency Committee for Zionist Affairs has taken steps here to organize a committee of prominent Americans in support of Jewish aspirations in Palestine. The Emergency Committee has designated Emanuel Neuman to do this work and he has been in contact with statesmen, legislators, clergymen, educators and writers, some of whom have already expressed willingness to serve on such a body.

The committee would represent a revival on a wider scale of the American Palestine Committee set up in 1932, with the late Vice-President Charles S. Curtis as chairman, "for the furtherance of the restoration of Palestine as the Jewish national homeland and the dissemination of accurate information as to the progress of the up-building work in the Holy Land." The committee at that time included Cabinet members, Governors, Congressmen and others.

AL SEGAL Speaks on Birthday

THE days just run away, and Ellen is one year old this week. (She is the Ellen who is my granddaughter.)

Her birth was duly recorded here when it occurred and since, from time to time, people write and ask me how is Ellen, it is only proper that I call attention to the first milestone of her life. They do seem to be interested and it is only fair that I, as a purveyor of news and opinions, should satisfy them.

Yet I feel, too, that the public should be interested also in the complex of grandfatherhood called Mr. Segal. I recall him a year ago sitting at his desk and waiting for the news (boy or girl) and wondering whether it was really worth while for a baby to be born in a dreadful time.

That this was going to be a Jewish baby made the problem only a little more grievous. It seemed a hell of a world for all babies, Gentile, Jew, white, black. I found Mr. Segal thinking of calling a strike of all babies about to be born. "No! We refuse to be born until such a time as you make the world fit for us to live in."

This was the time the Maginot line still stood and the world was waiting anxiously for springtime. Not long after that Hitler went into Denmark and Norway; in the quick march of dreadful events Holland and Belgium were shortly to be overrun and France wrecked.

Mr. Segal was in no happy mood at the prospect of becoming a grandfather, had no cigars ready to pass around among the boys in the office. I suspect, too, that his vanity inhibited him from giving vent to a full rejoicing over the occasion. Mr. Segal felt he was much too young to be a grandfather.

Yet, as the months passed after Ellen's birth, Mr. Segal gave himself to a happy reconciliation. He altogether forgot Hitler in the idyllic hours when he was calling on Ellen. What did that scoundrel have to do with the decent world in which Ellen prattled, smiled and had her being? Hitler was far away from this.

Her world was the nursery where gay, synthetic birds fluttered from the chandelier and various dolls sat around waiting for the time when Ellen could get up and love them.

Once in awhile Hitler's voice came into the apartment by radio, frightening everybody, but its hideous clatter meant nothing to Ellen. She went on with the verities of her lovelier world—the sunbeam streaming through the window, the lamb that, when wound up, played a piece about the other lamb that Mary had, the pink rattle.

Mr. Segal could feel brave about everything when he was in Ellen's presence. Her smile seemed something left over from the good world that had been lost. Yes, it was a good world and Mr. Segal lived a bright hour in it. (Though he didn't know the bright hour when he lived in it. You never know the bright hour when you're in it. Long afterward you say yes, it was a bright hour in a good world.)

I noticed that Mr. Segal's vanity no longer was suffering as in the beginning when it was distressed at his becoming a grandfather. His vanity had thought that grandfatherhood was something senile.

Mr. Segal had become aware of another springtime in his life. It was like starting all over, back to the time when his own children were young, when he swung them on his leg and carried them on his shoulder. He was doing this all over again.

No, he thought, being a grandfather doesn't really mean getting old. It's being young a second time. It's another chance.

Yet it was different from the first time he was young; it was even better. His grandchild was not the burden that his own children had been. No getting up to walk the floor with Ellen when she had a bellyache in the night, no struggling with the mysteries of the diaper which Mr. Segal never did quite understand even in his first youth, none of that sort of thing.

In the nursery Mr. Segal sat for hours at a time enjoying his second youth without any interruption by responsibilities, exulting in every smile Ellen had for him, feeling triumphant when Ellen raised herself on her feet and with the aid of her hands walked around the playpen, rejoicing when Ellen did patty-cake.

I remember Mr. Segal's desolation when he was informed that Gail, the Ruslander child, could say orange juice when she was only seven or eight months old. This was preposterous he thought. If orange juice could be said at seven or eight months, Ellen would be saying it. He guessed it was just the fondness of Gail's grandmother believing that she really did say orange juice at seven or eight months.

I discover Mr. Segal's eyes bright with the reflection of new vistas. He used to be an aging man who hadn't much left to look forward to. He liked to say that at his time of life a man was about through: He had brought up his children, which is the main job, and what was there left for him to do? He had become superfluous. He was like an empty, rattling freight car in a long train.

Besides, in his character as a Jew, it gave him only special pain to try to look far ahead. The way was all so dark. In the former times he used to think of Jews as gleaming prophets carrying light to lead men to the mountain top. The mountain top seemed not far off then.

Now Mr. Segal's old eyes grew bright again at the prospect of calling on Ellen and basking in her illumination. "At 4 o'clock," he says, "I'll be with Ellen." He looks forward to this as to a date with Messiah.

He no longer thinks of himself as a non-essential hanging on, superfluous, in the world. Yes, he says, I've got to give at least till Ellen's graduation from high school. I must see her marching down the middle aisle to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance."

Then, he says, I must be there when she graduates from college and I will have to stay here awhile longer to be at her wedding. And, certainly, I must be allowed to live long enough to see her first child.

For Ellen's sake Mr. Segal also has come back to the idea that the Jews are light-bearing prophets. Yes, the way to the mountain top will be resumed and Jews must join their light with the lights of all other peoples to lead the way to brotherhood. For Ellen's sake and for Gail's sake (it's utterly impossible that she could have said orange juice at the age of eight months) and for the sake of all the Ellens and Gails in the world.

(In deference to Mr. Segal's protesting vanity I should conclude by saying that he is not really as old in years as I have made him look.)

WE'RE TELLING YOU

To those who doubted the Nazi affiliations of the late Senator Lundeen of Minnesota we recommend the March issue of Click. Drew Pearson and Robert Allen testify unequivocally that none other than George Sylvester Viereck, paid Nazi agent in this country, wrote the late senator's anti-British speeches. . . . Some of the French Canadian hotels in Quebec still express their pro-Hitler sympathies by enforcing a strict policy of accepting a purely Gentile clientele only. . . . Walter Winchell is going trans-Atlantic, what with the London Daily Express making arrangements to print a column of his revelations once each week. We hope the Express brings to its readers his story about the showing of Charlie Chaplin's "The Dictator" in Santiago, Chile. The film, it seems, was shown despite protests from the Nazi Embassy, and in the middle of a performance local Nazis dropped some stench bombs in the crowded theater. The audience was furious, but one woman's sense of humor saved the day. "Heavens!" she shouted, "how those Nazis stink!"

SOCIAL MERRY-GO-ROUND

The best place to meet celebrities is not one of the well advertised night clubs, but one of the private parties given by Alfred A. Strelsin, of Milwaukee and

New York. Al Strelsin is the advertising genius who likes to help good causes in his spare time. Whenever Dr. Weizmann calls for economic cooperation Al helps to mobilize the country's financial big shots. When Reinhardt's "Eternal Road" needed something like $80,000 to assure its final production, Al supplied it. And there are many writers who suddenly blossomed forth from obscurity with a successful book who owe the opportunity to write it to this same Al, who nursed them along during stormy periods. The other day Al Strelsin threw a party for Dorothy Thompson, the columnist, who, as you know, is leaving the Herald-Tribune Syndicate for the Bell Syndicate, and whose stuff will soon be appearing in the New York Post. Dorothy is preparing to fly to England for an observation tour of her own. It is said, incidentally, that Clare Boothe, who is still fighting it out with Miss Thompson for the spotlight, is also considering a jaunt of that sort. But, to come back to Al Strelsin's party of the other day: We met there, among others, Ben Hecht, Leonard Lyons, Franklin P. Adams, Fannie Hurst, David Sarnoff, Ralph Ingersoll, Vincent Sheean, Samuel Grafton, Harry Hershfield, Billy Rose, Jimmy Walker, Sid-

ABOUT PEOPLE

Probably the finest tribute paid the late Max Annenberg, circulation manager of the New York Daily News (which has the largest circulation of any newspaper in this country), was that of Ed Sullivan, News columnist, who devoted an entire piece to touching personal reminiscences of Annenberg. . . . Promised for spring publication is the autobiography of Konrad Ber-covici, the teller of gypsy tales. We wonder whether Konrad will tell about his literary beginnings in the Yiddish press. . . . Mrs. Olga Rabinowitz, 75-year-old widow of the famed Yiddish writer, Sholom Aleichem, was one of those in the picket line when the Newspaper Guild strike against the Jewish Day in New York began. . . . Planning to invade Broadway as a producer is Donald Flamm, former owner of Radio Station WMCA.

DOUBLY GLAD

When Anna Slesser, eighth grade student in Lafayette, won her school's essay contest on "Why I Am Glad to Be an American" she experienced a thrill, but it was no new thrill. Last year Anna, who is 13 years old now, entered the contest and was adjudged winner then, too.

A LETTER

Mrs. S. Stein of Hartford City writes us about the splendid reception her son has received down at Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss. Her letter might serve to make other Indiana mothers feel better, about their son's welfare, so The Post is reprinting it in full.

"We have one son, Laurel W. Stein, who enlisted in the National Guard out of Muncie. He's with the 150th Field Artillery Band at Hattiesburg, Camp Shelby. He writes that he met three of the Jewish boys of Indianapolis and they'd gone to Temple. I received a letter this morning from Rabbi Arthur Brody, saying he met my son and several of the Jewish boys. All are fine and we need not worry about them, and he hopes to make some contacts with them in the community there. I also got a letter from Howard M. Wilson, warrant officer of the 150th Field Artillery Band, saying: 'Just a few lines to let you know how much I appreciate having your son in our organization. I have seen boys come and go in our band, but I have never seen your son's equal in keeping up the morale of an outfit when they are in the doldrums. Personally I have laughed at his wit and pantomime until my sides ached. You would be surprised what a boy with your son's sense of humor can do to keep the boys doing a little better when the going is a little tough or monotonous.'

PAMPHLETS AVAILABLE IN BOOK FORM

The series of pamphlets Rabbi J. Marshall Taxay of Terre Haute had prepared as chairman of the adult Jewish education committee of District Grand Lodge No. 2 of B'nai B'rith have been made into a book called "Our Story" which has just come off the press. Rabbi Taxay has dedicated the volume to Mildred and Emil Palmer. All B'nai B'rith members in the district will recall the valuable series, which, in brief form, gave the contributions of Jews to the building of the United States. We don't know how to secure a copy of the book, but probably as good a way as any would be to write directly to Rabbi Taxay, Temple Israel, Terre Haute.

WRONG MAN

Joseph W. Morris of Gary is receiving congratulations on his appointment to the township advisory board. 'Tis not so though. He wants it known that the person is Joseph F. Morris. Just different people that's all.

ON BOWLING

The prize, consisting of a case of soft drinks, donated by E. Lebowitz of the Acme Liquor Store, was won by Jack Falk for collecting 631 actual pins last Sunday morning. (Jack, as we all know, edits a weekly magazine, known as "The Hoosier Bowler," which is distributed, gratis, throughout the city and country.) Bill Meyers, Sr., after a vacation in Los Angeles, has resumed action on the Netzorg Capitals bowling team, which has been shooting high totals in recent campaigns. Leo Netzorg has just returned from a Florida visit, and expects to join the squad next Sunday. Sam Kroots' Courier quintet broke the league five-man record with a 2,884 total.

PITFALLS OF B'NAI B'RITH WORK

In the interest of B'nai B'rith, one must take the "bitter with the better." Monday night as Herman M. Messing and Andrew Fried of Lafayette were returning from a visit to the Indianapolis lodge, a front tire went flat near Lebanon. Herman, perplexed, but undisturbed, proceeded to get out his instruction book to find the exact location of the tools. Once located, the "jacking up" started, urged on by a little B. B. vocabulary, but to no avail. At the stroke of midnight, a good Samaritan of Indianapolis, stopped and helped the party out of their dilemma. In the party were Dr. Wm Pasco, Miss Lois Fried and Mrs. Andrew Fried.

WHO GAVE THE TORAH

As Rabbi Milton Greenwald of Evansville took the Torah out to read one Saturday morning at services, seven-year-old Marilyn Ravdin asked seven-year-old Jane Weil, "Do you know who gave the Torah to the Temple?" Jane replied, "Yes, Moses." Marilyn shook her head. "Nope." So Jane thought for a moment and said "God?" Then Marilyn, very seriously answered "nope, my grandmother."

The editor's chair,

I have a letter from one of the more prominent Jewish workers in the East, and because parts of it discuss other matters I am reprinting what I can here. The letter reads:

I am among the many regular readers of The Jewish Post. I especially value your editorial page, and I had intended to write you a couple of weeks ago, when you asked the opinions of readers as to whether or not the nature of the page should be continued or changed. I had intended to say most emphatically at that time that you should continue to publish a controversial editorial page.

In my opinion, the big weakness with the Jewish weekly press in general is that it has too little of this kind of material. After all, we Jews in America are confronted with all kinds of problems and face many different kinds of decisions, and a Jewish editorial page should really be the most interesting feature in any weekly. The average Jewish weekly has very little space for world or American Jewish news and one of its most valuable functions, I think would be to contribute to a better understanding of Jewish issues by an intelligent discussion of them every week.

I did not write, originally, because I was swept up into a lot of work, and you know how that is. Today however I have received your issue of Feb. 21, and noted with considerable interest your editorial on the Ford advertisement.

To my great disappointment, most of the Anglo-Jewish weeklies carried the Ford ad, including your own. I do not think that your central argument has a leg to stand on. That argument seems to be that it is all right for a Jewish paper to carry Ford advertising if that fact does not influence its editorial policy. The way I look at it is this: If Ford is innocent, his advertising should be carried and he should even be editorially defended. On the other hand, if he is guilty, it is just as wrong for a Jewish paper to carry his advertising as it would be to carry advertising for German made goods. There can be no half-way measures here, and I think that both you and the American Israelite are misguided in the reason-

Local Decision May Not Be Community's

IF EVER there was any member of the Indianapolis Jewish community who didn't believe that the Jewish Federation of Indianapolis, although not elected on a democratic basis, was in fact the Jewish community council of the city, then he may now be convinced otherwise.

Some time soon, if not already, the Federation is to decide whether Indianapolis Jews are or are not in favor of the setting up by the Council of Jewish Welfare Funds and Federations of a budget-making body which will decide how the funds raised for the United Palestine Appeal, the Joint Distribution Committee and the National Refugee Service are to be divided.

Indianapolis has been asked to make known its decision in the matter, and, as is proper, the Federation will hold a meeting, or already has held one, to vote on the proposition.

The meeting at which the voting will take place will not, unless the Federation changes its policy, be announced to the public. In fact, just as every other decision which has been made in the past ten years, the will of the community will be registered without the community knowing that this will is being registered, or without the community being able to make known its wishes.

The system is all wrong and The Post is tired of saying so to the point of becoming a nuisance.

In other cities, where the leaders are just as zealous of the welfare of their Jewish citizens as are our own leaders, every organization is allowed to elect a representative to the Jewish community council based upon the number of its members. These representatives elect an executive committee which does exactly the same work as the present board of governors of the Jewish Federation, except that in the case of other cities, the will of the community is registered, whereas here the will of the Federation is represented. If that will happens to coincide with the will of the community, fine; but if not, it may not be fine, but the community can do nothing about it.

In the present question the chances that the will of the community may be controverted are greater than in most instances. This budget-making group is opposed by the Zionists, it is opposed by the Hadassah, it is opposed, so the Zionists say, by the B'nai B'rith nationally, and many other groups.

The referendum makes a clear case for the need of transforming the Federation into a community council. The Federation has done a splendid job. Let that be conceded. But this same capability also should indicate to the leaders of the Federation that it should no longer continue its paternalistic system of inclusion on its board of governors people who happen to be members of various groups, but who in no way represent these groups, and thus hope to pacify the community.

The Dilemma of Indiana U. Organized Groups

THE situation which Larry Frommer complained of about the refusal of so many of the Jewish students to take part in Hillel activities at Indiana University probably has many aspects which could be attended to, but in one the fault is so obvious that comment is warranted here.

Definitely the welfare of the Hillel Foundation at Indiana is a concern of the Jewish student organizations on the campus. The Hillel and Sigma Alpha Mu, Pi Lambda Phi and Sigma Delta Tau are at Bloomington for one and the same purpose. All were brought to the campus to provide an outlet for the social and Jewish activities of the Jewish students. The difference is that the fraternities and the sorority are exclusive, while Hillel is open to both organized and unorganized

Jewish students.

Clearly then if the Jewish organizations already on the campus ignore the Hillel Foundation, they must concede that their fraternal and social significance are not only their first consideration but also their only consideration.

Hillel deserves and should have the support of any Jewish student who labels himself as Jewish, but that happens to be a personal problem awaiting his own decision. The organizations, however, which label themselves Jewish have no like choice. They cannot afford to permit Hillel activities to go unsupported lest in their indifference they admit that their label as a Jewish organization is misleading and that their raison d'etre is entirely social and defensive.

Soldiers Should Get Blanket Invitations

NO DOUBT the Army and Navy Service Committee of Indianapolis will soon begin to function as evidently like committees are already functioning at Camp Shelby as indicated by the letter from Mrs. Stein in the "Around the State" column in this week's issue, but probably so far the group has done only preliminary work.

Two Jewish draftees at Fort Harrison appeared at Kirshbaum Sunday under the impression that a "tea dance" was to be held there. They said there was a notice to that effect on the bulletin board at the camp. The last tea dance was held Sunday, Feb. 2. On inquiry it developed that although the boys, who were from Warren, Ohio, had been at the camp for over a week, they had not as yet been contacted by the local committee. Of course, Fort Harrison at present is a distribution center where the draftees stay for only a few weeks until finally they are sent to their permanent destination, but even so, while at the fort they could be invited to take part in the community's affairs, or else why was a local committee organized at all.

As a suggestion, the local committee could weekly send to each Jewish boy at Fort Harrison a list of the local affairs with a blanket invitation to be present as the community's guest at any or all of the functions. Probably there is no need for local rabbis to write to the mothers of the draftees as did Rabbi Arthur Brody at Camp Shelby, since when the boys reach the camp of their final destination, evidently their parents will then be contacted.

Indianapolis is a warm-hearted community, as any number of people from other cities who now live here can testify. The community wants to give the Jewish soldiers at Fort Harrison invitations to kosher meals, invitations to its dances and its entertainments, and unquestionably will do so when the Army and Navy Committee finally does get under way. Then all the Jewish soldiers at Fort Harrison will take away with them when they depart nothing but pleasant memories of the Indianapolis Jewish community.
